Dear Parent/Carer,

Our new half term has started well. Two weeks in and lots of things have happened that we would like to share with you. Of course, you will know about most things from our school Twitter account anyway!

We have had quite a few school trips already. Some classes have visited Wakefield Library and Year 2 have been to Pontefract Liquorice Factory. Please see photos on twitter.

During the week, we have had Hand to Mouth in working with our Year 2 and Year 5 children – looking at Lent and Holy week. Hand to Mouth are a Christian organisation who work with Church of England Schools to support the Christian ethos.

Please take some time to spare a thought for our Year 6 children who have been given their Secondary school allocations this week. They found out which school they will be going to in September. I always feel a sense of sadness when this information comes...our children are growing up and will soon be leaving us!

We finished this week on a really high note with an exciting World Book Day where children and staff dressed as literacy characters. It always amazes me the effort that everyone makes to dress up for this event and the great feeling all around school. On Thursday, we took some children to Waterstones where they got to browse and choose some books.

A great start to the half term! Don't forget Red Nose Day this coming Friday and remember to book your appointments for parents evening when the letter gets to you.

Thank you.
